Introduction

What is New Beginnings?

New Beginnings is a guide to help you find and contact resources that you and your child need. The guide is for North Dakota families who have children with special health care needs. The intent of this booklet is to inform families, no matter when they learn of their child's condition, where to look for resources in North Dakota. Please share this guide with other families or the providers who help you.

What is in the guide?

New Beginnings has phone numbers, email, websites, and a list of services for each resource. Talk with your own health care provider about these and other services your child may need.

Are there listings for my city or county?

The listings in New Beginnings are for families who live anywhere in North Dakota. Statewide contacts can help refer you to your local resources. Some listings do include information for your city or county. There may also be a local resource guide for your city or county. You can call Family Voices of North Dakota toll free at ☎ (888) 522-9654 or ✉ fvnd@drtel.net or ask your own health care provider for local resources.

How do I use the guide?

If you need a service, look under the subject area to find someone who can help you. Or, if you know the name of the organization you want to call, look in the list of resources for the name and page number.

If you want to talk with someone about your child's needs and are not sure who to call:

Call Family Voices of North Dakota

☎1-888-522-9654

and we will be happy to assist you in navigating your way to find the appropriate service or resource for you and your family.

Tips for Getting Answers To Your Questions

Many families say finding information can be confusing. You can work together with your health care provider as you use the information and services in this guide. Here are tips from other families who have a child with special health care needs:

Don't Give Up

"It's about not giving up; you need to ask a lot of questions. Persistence is the word I use. Pushy, sometimes yes. But persistence is really it because you don't have to be pushy; you just have to not give up."

- Keep calling and keep asking questions.
- Ask for names and phone numbers of other people to contact.
- If the recorded voice on the phone is confusing, often you can just stay on the line and will be directed to the operator, or you can often dial "0", to be redirected. Written requests or email may result in a prompt response.

Keep Notes

"Get very organized, keep a notebook. Write down when you called, who you talked with, and what the conversation was about. You're going to need to go back to that at some point - you're not going to be able to remember it all."

Keep track of:

- Who you talked with, the phone number, and the date of the call.
- The name of the organization and the information you were given.
- What you and what they agreed to - and by what date.
- Their ideas about other people to contact.
- Ask for a business card. Write down the time and day of your contact and what was done.
- Fax, mail, or email your questions to your doctor before your appointment.
- Try using a Care Notebook, a 3-ring binder for notes and papers, such as the FVND Care Notebook at www.fvnd.org

Educate Yourself

“Become knowledgeable about your child’s illness or disease”

- Get information from your providers, the library, other parents, or the internet.
- Make sure the information you receive is correct and up to date. Ask your doctor or health care provider about the information you find.

Learn the Language

“I wasn’t sure I was asking the right questions, because everyone talks a different language, with a lot of acronyms. You need to know the proper words to use to get the right care and services for your child, and in the meantime, ask, ask, ask.”

Provide this key information when you make a call or contact:

- Your child’s age.
- Your child’s diagnosis (if one has been made) or your main concern.
- Where you live (city, county).

Listen to the words others use when talking with you:

- Ask about any word you don’t understand as well as acronyms.
- Write the word down and what it means (have them spell it out).
- Use these words when you talk to others.

Take Care of Yourself

“Take care of yourself; this is so important and so easy to forget. But it is a must so you can take care of your child.”

- It’s a lot of work. Take a break to recharge yourself or ask for help.
- Give yourself time each day, 10 minutes or more to do something you like.
- There is a lot of information. Set a limit on how much time you will spend looking for or reading information.
- You may not be able to look for everything at one time.
- Tell your health care provider how you are doing. Ask him or her to help you focus on important information or resources.
- Share your feelings with your family, friends, other parents, and providers.

Look to Other Families

"For me, other families were the biggest resource. Other families had been there and knew where I could turn for assistance. See if there are support groups in your area. If you have a diagnosis, the smartest thing you can do is find another family with the same diagnosis."

- Find a support group near you. Talking with other parents can give you energy.
- Ask your child's health care providers or teachers if they know another family whose child has the same diagnosis or needs.
 - Contact Family Voices of North Dakota to assist you in locating the resources you seek for your child ☎ 888-522-9654
 - Contact the North Dakota Parent to Parent program to connect you with another family for emotional support ☎(888) 522-9654.
 - Contact the Federation of Families for Mental Health ☎(800) 492-4951
 - Contact Pathfinder Family Center for information on your child's educational needs ☎800-245-5840

Give Feedback and Share What You Find

"A professional told me years ago the importance of learning more about the child's disease than they did, because you are going to be the best advocate for your child. I think it is important for all families to do, so that they can be the best advocate on behalf of their children"

- Tell people when and how they helped you.
- Think about calling someone back if you find a great resource they did not know about.
- Pass what you learn on to other parents.
